

Question 2: Explain the difference between DirectX and SDL. Which does pygame use?

DirectX is the standard for high-end gaming on both Windows and Xbox, as it is developed by Microsoft. SDL on the other hand, is an open source graphics library available for any operating system. Pygame decided to use SDL, as they wanted to use an API that any operating system can use, similar to Python.

Question 3: What do each of the letters of the IDEA acronym stand for?

I → Import and initialize

D → Display

E → Entities

A → Action

Question 4: What do each of the letters of the ALTER acronym stand for?

A → Assign Values

L → Loop

T → Time

E → Events

R → Refresh Screen